For the final project I plan on making a text-based choose your own adventure game. I chose this because I like fiction writing and because I think it would be better for practicing Python programming since mobile apps and web development seem to typically require other languages and I don't know if my Python skills are that strong yet.